

January 26, 2026: On Focusing on the Root and Not Just the Flower

Opinion
US news

America feels like a country on the brink of an authoritarian takeover

Francine Prose

Sun 25 Jan 2026 22.00
EST

This is the news we should be paying attention to. At least for the moment, everything else is a distraction

I disagree. While important to monitor, I believe that the law of attraction should guide us to contextualize authoritarianism within the scope of what it is attempting to hide, continue, and grow in secret.

The root of our problem is drawing its growth from a sinful lust of sex, money, and power that is manifesting itself in the Epstein story.

The flower of our problem is manifesting itself in the Federally-agitated Brave New World of authoritarianism.

If we fight the authoritarianism 'head-on', then we will witness the fueling of their fire and the increase of authoritarian power that will allow the tyrant to 'rush through the doors in an emergency' (their image, not mine - their admission, not my imagination).

In order to defeat the flower, we must expose and deflate the growth of the root. In time, the flower will fade away.